

Before the 20th Century, the region around East Coast Road, Joo Chiat, and Katong in Singapore used to be filled with coconut plantations. This balmy atmosphere provided the perfect backdrop for the wealthy to have their weekend retreats. East Coast Road used to be a sandy road lined with coconut palm trees that ran along the ocean. The blues and greens in this artwork are reflective of this ocean road.

As time passed, the area was developed into a residential suburb. The Peranakans chose to settle there. Today, their legacy still lives on in the preserved shophouses and colonial bungalows that dot the area.

This canvas print is a digital reproduction of an original artwork by Deborah McKellar.
